NOW we the long expected Year behold
Which Astrologic Prophecies foretold,
And great Events since Time began conceal'd
Rush forth, and are to open View reveal'd :
Th' Objector says, "What Things are come to pass;
Does not each Scene continue as it was?"

No :

The best of Kings has laid his Scepter down,
And GEORGE the Third adorns the British Crown :
New-conquered Realms join to his boundless Sway,
And Savage Chiefs their willing Homage pay ;
He Reigns o'er Realms to former Kings unknown.
Whose vanquish'd Monarchs due Subjection own.

Ames 1762.

URania descending from the forky Summit of Parnassus delivered me a Rod, sent by the whole Choir of Muses, to Chastize the Insolence of the Vintners, whom they never lov'd, and with whom they are highly offended for a Peice in Rhime directed to Me in the Postscript of the Boston Weekly News Letter, Thursday 25th December 1760, on the Receipt I published in my last Year's Almanack, to make Currant Wine.

LIKE Priests of Baal they crav'd the Muses Aid,
But Muses of the Vintners are afraid ;
For they infum'd that wicked furious Crew,
Who Orpheus, and his tuneful Lyre o'erthrew :
So void of Thought, and uninspir'd, their Song
Was doggrel, low, and grov'ling crept along :
Had not their Censure been unjust and bad,
They might and may with Poetry run mad.
Good Currant Wine is genuinely made
By that just Rule when cautiously obey'd,
For Men of Worth, of Wealth, of Curious Taste
To that Receipt subscribe probatum est
They did presume to charge me with a Rape,
But they commit Adult'ry with the Grape ;
They do indeed as often as they brew
And Liquors make which Nature never knew ;
They do the Off-spring of the Vine defame
To call their Wines by any genuine Name :
O ! thou Madeira ! pure as Morning Dew !
Thy Excellence the Gods stand witness to :
Thy Name enobles many a guileful Cheat,
Which can't thy Taste nor Flavour counterfeit.
I meddl'd not with Wine on Nature's Part
But only such as was contriv'd by Art ;
Yet Vint'ners the Victory is thine,
Your Art (I own) by far exceedeth mine,
For you can make your Cyder into Wine.

AMERICA kind Heav'n's peculiar Care,
 Vast Heaps of Nature's Stores are treasur'd here:
 Here the kind Earth produces yearly Grain,
 Soften'd by Waters and descending Rain:
 In Time thy Towers will vie with Europe's Pride,
 And scepter'd Heads will gladly here reside.

VAST are the Treasures Indian Climes may boast,
But Pagan Ignorance o'erspreads the Coast;
To Idol-Gods or living Brutes they bow,
Their King's the greatest Deity they know.
Ye Christians as their plenteous Wealth you share,
With your blest Faith enrich the Natives there.

SEE in whole Blood the chilling Ague reigns,
His Eyes grow languid and declare his Pains:
The ruddy Lips that once engag'd the Sight,
Now trembling quivers in a ghastly White:
The Joints are now unstrung, the Fabrick shakes,
Nature the Dissolution fears and quakes.

At Swansea the second 7th Day of the Eleventh Month.

XII. December hath 31 Days 1762.

IF the blest Olive waves with Signs of Peace
Through all the Host tumultuous Clamours cease,
Th' exulting Croud are dazzl'd with Surprise,
And on the pleasing Omen fix their Eyes;
The gladd'ning News Fame's hasty Pinions bear,
And Shouts of Joy salute it from afar.

A Page for the Ladies.

THE Idea of Love and the Ladies are so connected, that when I dedicate the following Lines to the Fair Sex, I may be allowed to make Use of the Word Love: Therefore I promise them that the Subjects which I treat of in the following Pages shall be the Objects of their Love: Then as first and most beloved, I shall give a few Hints concerning that Shrub or Bush manufactured in the East-Indies, the Decoction of whose Leaf makes that Liquor which so delights, and sometimes almost intoxicates, called TEA.

And first of its negative Virtues. If the Gentlemen enliven their social Hours with the generous Bowl, furnished from the West-Indies with the inebriating Spirit, and pleasant Acid, mixed with the cool Fountain, why should not the Ladies cheer their friendly Visits with the harmless Decoction of an Indian Leaf? Naturalists observe, that amongst Herbs Worm-wood and Hore-hound will not grow together; no more will the Habit of Drinking Tea and Spirituous Liquors freely, subsist in the same Person. It is rare to find an Instance of a Person that is far gone in the Habit of drinking Drams, or Spirituous Liquors, but what abhors the Thoughts of Tea: On the other Hand, they who use Milk, but more especially Tea for Breakfast, are more easily preserved from the Custom and Habit of drinking spirituous Liquors, which murders Soul, Body, Estate and Reputation. They who upon the Use of Tea cry out. It hurts my Nerves! away with it! Alas, they should go further back for the Cause: These nervous Symptoms are caused by some Male-Regimen of their own, or from a weak State by Nature; they are afflicted for their own, or their Parents Mis-Conduct; Tea only raises the Ambush of a latent Distemper that would by and by break forth spontaneously upon them; if Tea hurts them, it is only the Criterion of weak disordered Nerves: They who tremble at only drinking a Dish of Tea, should rather tremble to think they are so obnoxious to nervous Disorders: Tea, in their Case, serves only as a Glass which truly represents the State of that curious Frame that joins Soul and Body together, the Nerves; from which Source the most dispiriting and ill-feeling Disorders of Body and Mind, do arise.

But positively: TEA is a Friend to the Muses, it brightens the Intellects, and clears the Understanding. High strong Food casts an imperious Mist upon the Mind, and greatly beclouds its Faculties; But Tea keeps the Body light and easy, whilst it very sensibly satisfies Hunger: Tea in this Light is considered only as Part of our Food ; its medicinal Virtues more eminently reside in the Thea Veridis, or Green Tea : But take in the whole Idea of Tea, and consider it both in its alimentary and medicinal Qualities, and more with Justice and Truth may be said in its Praise than of any other Plant or Shrub that grows out of the Earth. —

There may be some considerable political Objections against the Utility of so great a Consumption of a foreign Commodity ; but as I meddle not with Politicks, so I shall not pretend to answer this Objection. The Tea Pot, like the Widow's Cruse of Oil, receives only hot Water, and emits a pure alimentary Liquor, and continues to do so after several Repetitions.

2. THE second Thing I would offer to the Ladies Consideration, as what claims their Regard and Love next to Tea, is, their tender Offspring.

It is an Error in Judgment on the Part of the Mother, who, only for the Preservation of her Beauty, and fine Shape of Body, would put out her Infant to Nurse ; since suddenly to dry up a full Breast of new Milk in a healthy Woman, does such Violence to Nature, as greatly exposes the Mother to such Diseases as may marr her Beauty and Shape both. On the Part of the Child, whose Flesh is the same with the Mother's, nourished with the same Blood, and Nature had provided a Store from the same Fountain for its future Nourishment and Growth ; I say, for the Infant to be deprived of that Aliment that was congenial to its Nature, and put to the Breast of a Nurse, who differs in Constitution from the Child's, as much as one Species differs from another—happy ! thrice happy for many a poor Infant, in such Cases, if its Nurse had been a Goat, and not a Woman ! The former feeds on the tender Browse, and drinks only at the cool Fountain, but the latter sometimes feeds foul, and drinks deeply of that Liquor, which can and often does kill the Infant at second Hand, from the Breast of the Nurse ; of which unhappy Instances, many Examples might be produced. Almost all Infants Diseases arise by fault in the alimentary Tube, from Disorders in the Milk, whether of the Nurse or Mother : Hence the Nurses to Persons of Quality are under the strictest Regimen by the Direction of the most eminent and learned Physicians.

It certainly is, in some Measure, our own Fault, that so great a Part of the Human Race perish in a State of Infancy. Our indulgent Creator has done his Part with infinite Perfection : ' His • Eyes

‘ Eyes did see our Substance, yet Being imperfect ; and in his Book
‘ all our Members were written, which in Continuance were ‘ fashioned, when we were made in Secret, and curiously wrought ‘ in the lowest Parts of the Earth.” Nature provided wonderfully for our Preservation in her soft and easy Lap ; but when so delicate a Machine as the Body of an Infant is (whose very Bones were lately a fluid Mass) I say, when such a delicate Thing from the Lap and Care of Nature, comes to be jounced on the hard Knees, or handled with the rough Fingers of a cruel Nurse, or ignorant Mother ; it is a Wonder that there are no more crooked Limbs, dislocated Joints, and Cripples from Infancy, than there are. Naturalists observe, that the Hen is the fondest of her young ones of any Animal ; but how many of the tender Brood perish in a cool Morning for Want of the Mother’s indulgent Care : So some Mothers, though they love their Infants, hardly discover common Sense in their Treatment of them. Many Infants are sick, and many die with the unsuitable Aliment they receive by the Hand, or at second Hand, from the Breast. I would, according to my Talent, give special Cautions and Directions in an Affair of so much Importance as this seems to be ; but it would swell these Pages to a Volume : I hope some qualify’d Person, in Charity to the helpless and suffering Part of ourselves, will accomplish a Work which would be so useful.

But that there may be some special Matter alledged in this Charge against the Ladies Conduct towards their Infants, I shall repeat the Words of Doctor Hales, as follows : “ When the Bodies of tender Infants (says he) are close confined in Swathing, neither their Breast nor Belly can be so freely as they ought to do, when the Child draws its Breath ; and consequently, not only its Breathing, but Digestion also, are thereby greatly incommoded ; for the Digestion is much promoted by the Kneadings of the Midd-riff on the Stomach, which are no less than twelve hundred in an Hour ; and in Proportion as these numerous Kneadings are abated by Swathing, so will the Digestion be accordingly retarded and in-commoded.” — Further says he, Ignorant Nurses taking the soft Part of the Skull for a great Defect in Nature, are apt often to attempt to close the Mould of the Head, as they call it, that is, to press together, by Stroking and Pandage, those Parts of the Skull which are bony, expecting thereby to unite those distant bony Parts, not knowing that the intermediate soft Parts will turn to Bone ;
little thinking what Injury they do the Infant thereby, &c. causing Fits and Head-Aches during Life, &c.”
